RNA interference (RNAi) has come to the fore as an important gene-function dissection technology. One of the key components of the RNAi pathway is Dicer, an endoribonuclease responsible for converting small double-stranded (ds) RNAs into small interfering RNAs (siRNAs). Using RNAi-based screening, we identified Dicer as a crucial contributor to the viability of human umbilical vein endothelial cells (HUVECs), where Dicer-1 has been implicated in angiogenesis and is deficient in a variety of angiogenesis-related diseases. However, the underlying mechanism by which Dicer knockdown causes cell death remains largely unknown. Here, we show that Dicer-1 is required for the generation of double-stranded lariat RNA intermediates derived from rRNA as
